Do you write in acronyms?

In today's competitive workplace, speaking clearly and writing effectively is necessary for delivering your ideas. In the era of text and instant messaging, speedy conversations using acronyms and slang do not equal effective business communication. Whether English is your second language or you write for a living, effective communication skills can always be refined. Our pronunciation and writing classes will reinforce the basic skills you already know, remind you of rules you may have forgotten and teach you some things you may not have known.

Are you interested in teaching English abroad?

Our intensive four-week Teaching English as a Foreign Language (TEFL) program is specifically designed for people wanting employment abroad and gives you the skills to implement English lessons with a wide range of proven techniques. No formal training or teaching experience required.

2009 Program dates:

- June 19-July 17

For more information, see page 76, call Karen or Stacy at (951) 827-4346 or e-mail esl@ucx.ucr.edu.

International Education Programs (IEP)

Intensive English Program

Do you have friends or relatives abroad who want to study English intensively before going on to an American college or university? University Extension offers a year-round program in English as a Second Language for foreign students preparing to enter the American higher education system or for professionals who need improvement in English.

Short Conversation/Tour Program

Do you have relatives or friends abroad who would like to spend a month in California? Three- to four-week conversation and American culture programs are available for those who want to combine study with trips to many of the exciting sights of Southern California.

Evening ESL

Do you know someone — visiting faculty, researcher, friend or relative — who needs to improve his or her English language skills? Low-fee classes meet one evening each week year-round to help participants improve their English. See this page.
